

5 Hidden Moves Trump Made that Empower the Moors

A Sovereign Insight into the Hidden Layers of Power, Identity, and Nationality

1. Birthright Citizenship Debate

Trump's push to challenge the 14th Amendment sparked a national debate about birthright citizenship.

While aimed at immigration, it opens doors for Moors to assert their nationality through ancestral descent—jus sanguinis.

2. Exposure of the U.S. Corporation

By signaling that the 'United States' is a corporation, Trump echoes what Moorish-Americans have taught for decades.

This truth affirms that we are sovereign nationals, not 14th Amendment citizens owned as collateral by a bankrupt system.

3. Challenging BAR Associations

Trump questioned the role of judges and lawyers, calling out the legal system's corruption.

Moors have long maintained that the BAR is foreign and unauthorized to represent sovereign nationals.

This separation is vital for legal autonomy..

4. Economic Sovereignty Tools

Trump introduced Opportunity Zones and expanded access to independent financial tools like crypto.

Moors can use these to build trusts, estates, and wealth systems under national principles, outside of U.S. financial control..

5. Sovereignty Language in Public Discourse

By calling out 'deep state' actors and fringe ideologies, Trump distinguished between chaos and lawful sovereignty.

This may quietly validate lawful indigenous status—like Moors—when properly declared and executed under treaty.
